

ESP1813

First step towards an IoT implementation of a wireless sensors network for environmental radiation monitoring

The paper deals with the problem of designing and implementing an inexpensive wide area sensors network for environmental radiological monitoring. To this aim, the measurement node takes advantage from a low-cost, Linux based, development platform, and some new open-source software tool, which are pushed towards a network-oriented vision of Internet of Things (IoT).